Official Estimate of Argentina Crop
The Argentine government places the wheat crop of 1932 at 236,000,000 bushels from 15,164,000 acres compared with the total of 200,000,000 bushels from 13,600,000 acres a year ago. This is the second government estimate and was issued February 21st.

Wheat in The Netherlands

An interesting study of wheat production in the Netherlands and the part that country plays in the world's grain trade is given in the last issue of Monthly Review from the Wheat Situation from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Montreal, which mentions some of the outstanding features. It might be mentioned that the Netherlands has a population of about eight million, occupies an area of 25,380,000 acres, or 65 to the square mile; generally raises between 5 and 6 million bushels of wheat, and imports 10 to 12 million. The annual output of wheat and flour is 2,380,000 tons.

A marked increase in wheat acreage and production occurred in the Netherlands during the year 1932, the establishment of an assured price for domestic wheat being approximately three times greater than the world market price. The acreage was jumped from 192,000 to 230,000 and production from 6,750,000 bushels to 13,500,000 bushels. The average yield was very high, being 45.5. The minister of Agriculture, Van Aartsen, the wheat act is administered has issued an order covering the year 1933 whereby farmers will receive the high wheat act price from the field of only one-third of the acreage which they had under wheat in 1932.

World shipments of Wheat

World shipments of wheat and flour for the current crop year are now about the total for the same period of the previous year—more than 100,000,000 bushels. As the crop progresses, however, the shipments are not noticeable and it is expected that from now until wheat trade will be comparatively quiet.

Reducing Wheat Acreage

Canadian trade commissioner at Melbourne, Australia, cables that Australia wheat growers are much interested in the proposed wheat conference among the leading countries in the reduction of wheat crop acreage. The commissioner says that the belief is that the conference will be held at Regina, Canada, in July.

Where Canadian Wheat Goes

When the judges of the World's Grain Exhibition, Vancouver, 1933, commence the opening of the exhibition, the placing of the samples they will be confronted, in one only of the seven wheat classes, that for ten years, with about 60 tons of the best wheat of the world—over 100,000 bushels.

In view of the very wide export interest in the wheat situation, it is interesting to note just where the wheat grown in Canada goes. Canadian wheat is sold to almost 60 countries, more than 50 within the British Empire. The balance beyond Empire boundaries. Of the total of 160,000,000 bushels to Empire ports no less than 130,000,000 bushels went to the United Kingdom.

France and Belgium purchased each about 14,000,000 bushels; Italy and the Netherlands together accounted for 21,000,000 bushels; and China and Japan, 15,000,000 bushels; United States, 8,000,000 bushels; Germany, 6,000,000 bushels; and Persia 5,000,000 bushels. Sweden and Peru purchased about 1,000,000 bushels each.

Thursdays' closing wheat prices at Winnipeg were: May 21-1 1/4 to 1 1/2; 62-5 1/2; Oct 1-1 1/4 to 1 1/2.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Bassano Municipal Hospital District No. 6, Bassano, Alberta.

Gentlemen:

- (1) Capital Account Balance Sheet as at December 31, 1932.
 - (2) Revenue Account Balance Sheet as at December 31, 1932.
 - (3) Operating Account for the year 1932.
- INSURANCE IN FORCE: The 100 per cent concurrent clause is now attached to all your fire insurance policies in force, whereby you are permitted to insure all your buildings and contents up to 100 per cent of their present value. NINTH INSTALLMENT

Synopsis: Pauline, sentimental, thoughtful and loving, marries Dennis O'Hara in the belief that her life will always be blissful and happy. Her friend Barbara, married and divorced, in crystal marriage, Dennis dislikes Barbara, but the woman has a certain fascination for him. Following a motor accident Dennis discovers Barbara loves him. Barbara has been visiting the O'Haras, and after Dennis' return from the hospital she leaves. Nearly a fortnight later Barbara gets a letter from Pauline saying that her and Dennis are coming to New York for a visit. Barbara immediately begins planning for their entrance. Now go on with the story.

He was amazed, when on arriving again at the flat he found her dressed and waiting.

"Great Scott!" he exclaimed looking her over from head to foot. Barbara laughed. "Do you like me? No lipstick—no earrings—no nothing you're always having to say."

He drew a quick breath.

"Jove! It's not so bad. But all the same—you're divine."

She swept him a mock courtesy, her eyes bright with mischief.

"Jerry took her hand and, bending back, kissed her."

"I'm almost afraid of you, and yet—"

"Suddenly he caught her to him. 'Barbara—say that you love me!'"

She wrenched herself free from his passionate arms.

"Let me go—beast! Beast!"

Jerry burst with crimson with anger.

"Anyone would think you'd never kissed before, and that's the deuce is the matter! Other times you've been wicked. Oh, I say, kiss me, Barbara!" for she had begun to sob tearfully, but with infinite passion.

He had never seen her quite so before. He was angry and distressed. It was almost as if with her new mode of dressing she had changed her nature too. "Chuck it," he said again, "a shake in his voice. 'It's not as if I've never kissed you before or not."

other man."

"I know!" she struggled in vain for composure. "I know—I'm ashamed. 'Second hand!' she laughed violently. 'Don't take any notice. Get me a drink!'"

Jerry brought her the drink. His hand shook a little, and his eyes were ashamed. He could not have explained why.

"Sorry!" he said hoarsely. "I'm beastly sorry! I'd rather have died than upset you. Awful!"

"Idiot!" she forced a smile, and drained the glass. He gave her. "Forget it. It's too many late nights. My nerves are upset. I'll have to put some colour on after all. I look a sight."

She kept him waiting ten minutes, and he avoided looking at her as they left the flat together. He was a hunder, but somewhere at the back of his slow mind he realized that he had hurt her intolerably. In the car he said: "Would you rather not go? I'll explain to O'Hara."

"My dear!" Barbara said violently. "What do you take me for. If you breathe a word I'll never see you again."

They drove to the Albion in silence.

"You wait," she said. "I'll fetch them." Barbara said. She was out of the car before he could stop her. In the lounge she met Dennis. He did not answer at once, and she knew he was a hunder, but somewhere at the back of his slow mind he realized that he had hurt her intolerably.

"Ready!" he said. "I'll explain to O'Hara."
